My religion is kindness

The Dalai Lama said my religion is simple, my religion is kindness. It's been humbling to see how we have all pulled together over the past few weeks to care for each other in the coronavirus crisis. By now you may already have used the helpline. Thank you to the team of volunteers behind the scenes making this work. Thank you to our wonderful team at the Coop and to all our local businesses who are helping out.

Nevertheless, do you feel that the coronavirus has really thrown you? It's not surprising that a common feeling is losing our sense of certainty. No one knows quite what will happen next. I'm writing these words conscious that the situation may have changed significantly even in the days before this magazine arrives with you.

How do we stay safe and stable when we don't know what's lurking around the corner?

What's the answer? It is not that we have lost our sense of certainty. We have lost our illusion of certainty. We never had it to begin with. This could be majorly unsettling, or amazingly liberating. This tiny virus of 125 nanometres has sent the entire world into chaos. All of our plans are up in the air, markets are going crazy, entire countries shutting down, and we have no clue what the future holds.

But that is always the case. We never know what the future holds. We only think we do, and keep getting surprised when things don't pan out the way we expected. Now the mask is off. We have to admit our vulnerability.

What will happen next? We don't know. Our experts don't know. Our leaders don't know. Only God knows. And that is the point. Only God knows.

Close your eyes and feel the uncertainty, make peace with it. Because in all the confusion there is one thing you know for sure. You are in God's hands.

Over 2000 years ago a shepherd boy was chosen to be the King of all Israel and his life was punctuated by fear and uncertainty but throughout all he believed that it is possible to live in the unceasing care of a relentlessly attentive and gracious God. I hope you will know that care in our present circumstances.

Keep calm. Panic and fear are also contagious. Take every precaution as advised by health authorities. Wash your hands well. And every time you do, remember whose hands you are in.

While our church services are currently suspended Dedham Church is open for prayer from 10-4pm each day and we are recording a service to our website each week.

If I can be of any help do please get in touch

Psalm 23

The Lord is my shepherd, I lack nothing.
He makes me lie down in green pastures,
he leads me beside quiet waters,
he refreshes my soul.

He guides me along the right paths
for his name's sake.

Even though I walk
through the darkest valley,
I will fear no evil,
for you are with me;
your rod and your staff,
they comfort me.

You prepare a table before me in the presence of my enemies.

You anoint my head with oil;
my cup overflows.

Surely your goodness and love will follow me
all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

Dedham Parish Council

Parish Council website: Following the decision by Essex County Council to close down the Essexinfo website service, Dedham Parish Council had to look for another provider for its website. In November, the service provided by OneSuffolk was chosen. This meant that our website had to be rebuilt from scratch, giving us the opportunity of a complete re-design using the features offered by OneSuffolk. The new site ran in parallel from the beginning of January with the switch over being effective from the 1st February.

The dedhamparishcouncil.co.uk website covers much more than the parish council. It has an extensive section on Dedham itself ranging from village life to the history of Dedham. There is a useful web portal of links covering twelve separate areas of interest. We have a calendar of village events, a news page and a page of travel information. The website is optimised for use on mobile devices, most of the links use icons for access. If you have information or events you feel would be useful additions to the website, please contact me, John Goldsbrough at webmaster@dedhamparishcouncil.co.uk

Tea and tablets: We will be scheduling another 'Tea and Tablets' session as soon as we feel it is wise to do so. If you have any queries, please get in touch with Cllr Jane Meakin on 01206 321789. DPC is indebted to the 'experts' who give their time to help with this. It is rumoured that they quite enjoy it!

Neighbourhood Watch: Colleagues from Neighbourhood Watch offer the following advice about unsolicited phone calls. If you receive a phone call from any one saying they are from, for example, your internet provider, your bank, your phone provider, the Tax Office, Amazon etc etc saying that you have a problem with your account DO NOT RESPOND IN ANY WAY but simply put the phone down. If you are concerned, wait a few hours then look up the number and phone your provider to check. Do NOT go on to your ipad or computer as these are common scams which are circulating at the moment trying to obtain details from you.

Sports Club: Dedham Sports Club is seeking to appoint a consultant to undertake a one-off piece of work to help the club to plan its medium term development strategy. Specifically, we need help to analyse and target potential markets to help with income generation to secure the future of the Club.

We would like to hear from anyone who has the necessary skills, expertise and enthusiasm to help us. More information, including a detailed brief, can be obtained from Andrew Bell a.bell@btinternet.com or 07753 838375

Local elections: We were pleased to welcome a number of local residents to an informal get-together recently to find out more about becoming a parish councillor. Local elections were due in May this year but we have just heard that all local elections are an early casualty of Covid-19. At the time of writing it looks as if the current parish council will remain for an extra year, with elections to be held in May 2021. As soon as we have any more information we will post details on the parish council website.

Covid-19 and local events: The situation with Covid-19 is fast moving and subject to frequent change. It seems inevitable that a number of events, whether high profile national events or lower key local events, will be cancelled or postponed. If you are unsure whether a village activity is going ahead, please check our website in the first instance. Our webmaster will endeavour to post frequent updates. If you are organising something which is subject to change please let webmaster@dedhamparishcouncil.co.uk (John Goldsbrough) know so that the details can be posted on the website. Some examples of things which might be subject to change are scheduled parish council meetings (see below for current planned dates), and the May bank holiday VE day events. If it is more convenient, or you have any concerns which you think the Parish Council may be able to help with, you can phone the Parish Clerk, Emma Cansdale, on 01255 871483.

Nicola Baker

Future meetings: Parish Council meeting; Monday 30 March 2020, 7.30 in the Duchy Barn. Annual Parish Meeting; Monday 27 April; more details to follow.

Stake and support for summer success

April is an exciting time for gardeners. Although there's always the potential for showers and maybe a frost, the month also brings the Easter bank holiday and (weather permitting) plenty of time to be out in the beds and borders. Green shoots have emerged on trees and shrubs and are coming up from the ground. So it's time to get stakes and supports in if the garden is to look its best in the height of summer.

I've discovered the benefits of 6mm mild steel and use metre-high stakes as well as lengths bent into hoops of various sizes. I love how they quickly rust, making them much more discreet than bamboo canes, although I have to be careful not to take my eye out when bending down to weed around them. One of my borders has a looser, cottage garden feel with Camassia leichtlinii, herbaceous peonies, shrub roses, asters and delphiniums, hollyhocks, hardy geraniums and oriental poppies all spilling out and over each other. Here I use a series of vertical stakes with string criss-crossing between them at the bottom, middle and top so that plant stems can gradually grow through – hiding strings and stakes - without much further interference from me.

I've also got wires along boundary fences where I'll tie in roses, clematis and – on the front of the house – Clematis armandii. I also have rambling rose Paul's Himalayan Musk and a lovely but unnamed, velvety purple Clematis viticella scrambling over and around my shed and up into an old greengage tree.

By tying in climbing and rambling roses horizontally (or close to it) I can encourage more sideshoots along the length of the stem, which will all try to climb vertically and end up giving me more flowers. You could also try pegging them down – something they do well at RHS Sissinghurst – by selecting 4-6 of the strongest stems (remove weaker ones entirely), ideally 8-10 feet long. Bend them over and tie them in at the base to a stake in the middle of the plant.

As ever, if you're not supporting plants, there's probably something you can prune. My Penstemon 'Raven' should be 'breaking' right about now, so look for new shoots coming up at the base of the plant and cut just above them. You can also prune lacecap and mophead Hydrangea now having left the old flowers on over winter for interest and to protect the stems and new buds for the coming season. Remove the old flowerheads by cutting just above a pair of fat, healthy buds – be careful not to knock any off accidentally. Other deciduous, early-flowering shrubs can be pruned too once flowering is finished. It's the usual removal of the dead, damaged or diseased stems, taking off the more spindly growth to create an open framework to let air and light in. Here in the garden, I can take my secateurs to flowering currant Ribes sanguineum and a Weigela 'Bristol Ruby', cutting back to a strong young shoot lower down the stems.

I have a couple of peach trees – one fan trained – and a patio apricot and, if the weather is too wet for bees to be flying, it can't do any harm to nip out with a small fine-bristled paint brush and run it from blossom to blossom to hand pollinate them. In theory this will ensure a better crop, which will be nice as I've only managed to rescue one peach so far from ravaging wasps.

As things really get going in the garden, don't forget to keep an eye on your favourite weather app in case a late frost affects all your work.

Elliott Frisby,

Dedham Horticultural Society

Sadly, due to coronavirus precautions, we have had to cancel our April speaker evening and the Spring Show (4 April). We hope we will be back to normal in May but keep an eye on our website

Constable Country Medical Practice

Coronavirus Update:

The Coronavirus situation is changing daily. Please ensure you keep up to date with the situation nationally and locally and follow the latest advice from Public Health England at www.gov.uk/guidance/coronavirus-covid-19-information-for-the-public.

Our top priority at the practice is to remain open. In order to do this, we are screening patients to ensure that no patient who has been to an affected area and has Coronavirus symptoms, comes to the practice.

Even a suspected case will result in the practice closing temporarily and having to deep clean the building before it can be reopened. If the patient subsequently tests positive, all people who were in proximity to the patient (e.g. other patients in the waiting room or staff who spoke to the patient) will need to be traced, isolated and tested.

It may seem that we are being over-cautious, but I hope patients can see that the impact of a patient attending the practice with suspected Coronavirus is not only disruptive, but will also prevent the practice from providing urgent health care to patients if we need to close.

Please therefore be ultra-cautious. Follow advice from Public Health England and if you believe you may be at risk of contracting Coronavirus, stay at home and contact 111 for advice. Don't come to the surgery.

During this period we continue to offer as normal a service as possible. Our telephone call back service means that many medical issues can be dealt with over the phone. Please also use our eConsult service for any non-urgent issues. You can send an eConsult request any time of the day and we will respond within 48 hours.

Thank you for your cooperation. Please see our website for latest advice and details of our eConsult service.

Training Days: Please note that the practice will be closed from 1pm on the following dates for staff training:

Thursday 2nd April 2020, Wednesday 4th May 2020, Wednesday 10th June 2020

On these afternoons the Capel St Mary building will be open to enable access to the pharmacy but the Practice reception will be closed. East Bergholt reception will be open. Please note that there will be no clinicians at either building after 1pm as they will be attending training off-site. Our phone lines will be closed for the afternoon. If you need medical assistance please contact 111. If your need is urgent then please dial 999 or attend your local A&E.

IMPORTANT CORRECTION

The caption for the illustration on page 18 of the March magazine showing Cedric Morris’s painting of the burnt-out Art School in Mill Lane after the fire in 1939 should have stated that the photograph was reproduced by kind permission of the Cedric Morris Estate which holds the copyright. The picture is in the collections of the Colchester and Ipswich Museums at Christchurch Mansion.

Postscript to last month’s Feature on the Dedham School of Drawing and Painting

Graham Manning who saw the photograph of Cedric Morris’s painting in last month’s Parish Magazine has shown me another view of the identical scene painted at the same time by one of his students, Felicity Hellaby.

Felicity’s parents were both artists. Her father Richard Sydney Hellaby (1887-1971) was the son of the founder of the great New Zealand meat processors, R. & W. Hellaby’s. He came to England to train at the Lambeth School of Art and later in Paris at the Académie Julian and the École des Beaux Arts. Her mother Ruth (née Hollingsworth, 1880-1945) who had attended the Slade School of Art in London was known for her landscapes, figure and flower paintings. During the 1930s she was a regular exhibitor with the Ipswich Art Club. Both she and her husband were actively concerned with the protection of the local countryside. Richard was a founder member of the committee of the Dedham Vale Society set up in 1939 and became its Hon. Secretary in 1947. In 1932 he was exhibiting from Woodlands, Holbrook but by 1937 and perhaps earlier he and his wife were living in Dedham at Lower Park, a grey gault brick house built before 1777 and enlarged during the 19th century; so by the time Cedric Morris’s School opened in the village Felicity was conveniently placed to attend. Not long after his wife’s death in 1945 Richard Hellaby remarried and went to live in Devon before moving to Cape Town where he died in 1971.

Student Felicity Hellaby’s painting of the burnt-out Dedham Art School the morning after the fire on 26 July 1939

While they were both pupils at the art school in Dedham Felicity met Lucian Freud. He was seventeen and she, a year younger, became his first girlfriend. In 1941 he painted a portrait of her entitled “The Girl on the Quay” and his correspondence survives in the form of a series of faux-childish illustrated letters and postcards he wrote to “Darling Felicity”, mainly in 1943. Looking back on their friendship, Felicity said that she realised she had been lucky not to be too involved. “It was great fun to be with him”, she said “but my husband shared my life and Lucian wouldn’t have.”

In 1950 Felicity married Eversley Belfield (1916-1986), a military historian, lecturer and author who had spent part of his childhood in Dedham, where his mother built Birketts Wood in Bargate Lane. Felicity’s sister-in-law Penelope (Pearl) Gatehouse (née Belfield) will be familiar to visitors to Castle House as the girl holding the parasol in Sir Alfred Munnings’s 1939 series of paintings of “The White Canoe”. In her Memoirs Pearl records meeting Felicity at this time and describes Lower Park as “the nicest house in Dedham”. Since the models he used were all local people known to Munnings, it is possible that Felicity, whose parents like Pearl’s were part of his circle in the village, may have been the other girl in the canoe.
